

Ivey Galsim

2024

Award for Excellence as a
BSN Preceptor

Ivey Galsim holds her preceptorship at the North Surrey Public Health unit, where she works in the Best Beginnings Program, following up with postpartum clients and newborns in the community. She is an expert in neonatal health and her clients benefit from her experience in the NICU and as a certified Lactation Consultant.

As a teacher, Ivey puts her students at ease with a non-judgmental teaching style. Her vast knowledge could be intimidating for some, but she encourages students to learn from their mistakes and role-plays challenging scenarios to make them more comfortable during home and office visits and phone call assessments.

Ivey exudes confidence and competence and is inventive when considering client needs. For example, Ivey introduced free prenatal classes in public health to reduce the breastfeeding challenges faced by new parents in the postpartum period.

Ivey is gifted at building and maintaining an exceptional workplace environment, creating a safe and welcoming atmosphere for everyone with friendliness and good humour. For her easygoing yet instructive teaching style and her dedication to improving the health of parents and their families, we are pleased to award Ivey Galsim the Award for Excellence as a BSN Clinical Preceptor.
